

Touchpoint Task 5: Visualizing Yourself Inventory

You possess a variety of strengths, skills, and competencies. This inventory is designed to enhance the way you represent yourself on your About Me page by helping you develop a broad range of terms to use to describe them. Review the following article to help differentiate between the three terms: "Strengths versus Skills versus Competencies: How to Nail Them."

- A STRENGTH is something you are naturally good at and did not have to learn.
- A SKILL is something you can learn and master through practice.
- A COMPETENCE is something you develop through the combination of skills and knowledge.

Part One: The Present

Instructions: Identify your top three strengths & skills and answer the follow-up questions.

Current Strengths as a writer, content creator, professional, and/or community member	How might you demonstrate this strength in writing or other content you've created?	How might you visualize this strength on your About Me page?
Artist	I can do a lot of things	I can build my portfolio for this
Very creative	These "things" are very different from each other	I can tell a lot of things I am thinking of right now
Colorblind	I see world in little bit different way	Just mention fun fact about me

Current Skills as a writer, content creator, professional, and/or community member	How might you demonstrate this strength in writing or other content you've created?	How might you visualize this strength on your About Me page?
Creative vision	Do weird things	I can tell about what I am thinking of
Drawing	Basically making good art	put some of my art as a portfolio
Sewing	Make cloth as part of my art path	same as art use it for part of portfolio

Where do you see evidence of your strengths and skills in your current college coursework?

as computer science I don't see it a lot

Part Two: The Future

Instructions: Identify the top three strengths and skills you hope to develop and consider how you might acquire them. Then consider how you might use your digital portfolio to help your audience recognize those qualities. Answer follow-up questions.

Aspirational Strengths Strengths you want to develop as a writer, content creator, professional, and/or community member.	What will you do to acquire these strengths?	How might someone reviewing your Portfolio recognize that you have acquired this strength?
Use my words in more original way	Just learn language and read more books	Try to make new interesting sentences
Improve my grammar	Same with first one learn language and read more books	Try to make new interesting sentences
Use new method of expressing my self	Dive deep in contemporary art world	I will put some crazy/experimental art work I made

Skills as a writer, content creator, professional, and/or community member	What will you do to acquire these skills?	How might someone reviewing your Portfolio recognize that you have acquired this skill?
Better clothing design	I will make my brand	I can tell about what I am thinking of communicative	Be communicative talk with people	put some of my art as a portfolio
Ability to express myself	I express myself through my art, so I will create more and more. I just want to be a creator there are no better word in english to express this	They will see things I create

How do you envision these “aspirational” strengths and skills being used in your future college coursework and your future life as a professional and community member?
These skills are not connected with my coursework, but I will make art or better say “creation” using code
Which of your current strengths might help you develop the strengths you aspire to develop? Describe the process that will get you from current to future strengths.
My creative side will help me with this I just need to create and create more

Part Three: Designing Yourself

Instructions: Further consider the outcome of your aspirations by responding to the following questions.

1. Imagine the future version of yourself you have begun to envision. How would you describe this version of yourself to someone you were meeting in a professional or community context (for example, a job interview, graduate school, college alumni reunion, professional conference, interview with a journalist, casual introduction, etc.)?

I am creator, and I make things which are “me”

2. What kinds of things do you want to actually be able to do in your life and career after college? What competencies and experiences will you have? What will others desire to learn from you?

I will work on my own self, startup, or I will be an crazy artist

3. Consider some of these examples of Personal Mission Statements. What would your personal mission statement be?

"To create innovative technology solutions that will improve the lives of people around the globe."
